SENATOR SPENCER WANTS VOLSTEAD ACT MODIFIED

Gives Out Statement Apparently for Purpose of Assisting in the Campaign of R. R. Brewster

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 27—Senator Selden P. Spencer, who heretofore has been silent as to his stand on the liquor question, yesterday gave out a statement, apparently for the purpose of assisting in the campaign for R. R. Brewster for the United States senate, to the effect that the "so-called Volstead act is not fundamental," and that "it ought to be modified."

In his campaign for the United States senate, Spencer always has been opposed by that class of voters known to be in favor of light wines and beer, and notwithstanding the fact that numerous efforts have been made to have the senator make clear his stand on the liquor question, there is not on record a single expression, coming from him, outlining his direct position.

In fact, Spencer always has been classed as a "dry," and his statement urging a modification of the Volstead act, came as a complete surprise to a large number of Republican voters.

REED DIDN'T KNOW ABOUT THE WRITE-UP

UNTIL AFTER THE DAY FOLLOWING HIS SPEAKING HERE

WHAT SNODGRASS SAYS

Will Give a Sermon Sunday Evening on "Should Politics and Religion Mix?"

The Rev. R. E. Snodgrass, pastor of the Christian Church of this city, in this week's Radio, a publication issued weekly in the interest of the Men's Bible Class of that church, wants to know why Senator Reed did not make his offer of $500 while in Maryville.

Senator Reed did not know about the article Mr. Snodgrass had written until noon of the following day after his speaking here. Senator Reed did not arrive in Maryville for his speaking here until about seven o'clock on the evening of Oct. 16 and after dinner at the Linville hotel, went to the tent where the meeting was held. No one told Senator Reed about the article Mr. Snodgrass had written and it was not until Senator Reed picked up a Kansas City paper the next morning that he knew about it. As soon as Senator Reed read the article he expressed a desire to meet Mr. Snodgrass but Mr. Snodgrass was out of the city that week.

Here is what Mr. Snodgrass says this week about Senator Reed:

Who will vote for Reed? Here is the list as I see it.

1. The wets, including drinkers, brewers, distillers, boot-leggers.

2. The under-world crowd that revels in sin, dissipation and hell.

3. The moneyed interests who have made millions in the liquor business and would like to have the chance again.

4. Many wet Republicans, who think more of liquor than they do of party.

5. Prejudiced democrats, who never scratched a ticket and never will.

6. Some who will vote ignorantly, not knowing how to correctly vote the ballot.

7. Some who have not been taught the real issues involved in the campaign, not realizing the importance of the prohibition fight just now.

8. Some who are honest and really think they are doing their duty.

Of course we are able to see and acknowledge that a lot of good people will vote for Reed, as we state above, who have really led themselves to believe that they are duty bound to support him as he is the democratic candidate and it would be a great calamity to the nation if their party candidate was not elected. This is on the ground that there are greater issues that the liquor issue. I do not mean to condemn every voter who votes for Reed. Not at all. I might question your judgment in the matter but I will not question the honesty of every person who does it. The only reason I am making a fight against Reed is that I believe there are honest people in this community whom I might reach for the sake of the dry candidate in this election. I am not expecting to change the vote of a single, honest-to-goodness wet. These will vote for Reed. But I would like to see the honest-to goodness drys lined up on the other side. And every mother's son of you know that if the drys would line up for their cause as solidly as the wets always do for their's, the prohibition Cause would be won and sealed in this grand old state and in the nation. But for some unknown reason the drys have never done it, when a political campaign was on. The only apology I have for these articles is that I might help the really dry democrats to see the need of standing for the Cause in this campaign. The old politician who never scratches his ticket is too much

ANNIVERSARY OF T. ROOSEVELT

THE OUTLOOK COMMENTS ON HIS LEADERSHIP

NAME AWAKENS ECHOES

Of His Greatness—"Such an Example of Leadership is Not Dimmed in Death."

From the Outlook.

It is right and proper for Americans this week, which includes the anniversary of Theodore Roosevelt's birth, October 27, to consider how and why his spirit has still a potent influence upon his countrymen.

The test of a democracy lies in the leaders that it produces. A nation which within little more than half a century produces a Lincoln and a Roosevelt need not fear the verdict of posterity. In literature, in music, in sculpture, in painting, in architecture, we have produced no men of equal eminence. We are a nation of action rather than of artistry.

When Theodore Roosevelt published his volume, "The Strenuous Life," he prefixed to it a quotation from Tennyson's "Ulysses" containing these lines:

> How dull it is to pause, to make an end,
> To rust unburnished, not to shine in use.

The English artist summed up the energy of an irrestible and permanently inspring American statesman. No such driving force had emerged in our public life for many decades. Indeed, it begins to appear that Theodore Roosevelt was and is the greatest exponent of American spiritual energy.

It is still less than four years since his death—and here one thinks of Browning's words, "Never say of me that I am dead"—yet his fame seems already secure and his birthday is sure to be more and more widely celebrated as the years go by. "They must needs be men of lofty stature," says Hazlitt, "whose shadows lengthen out to remote posterity." Roosevelt was one of those men.

No better proof of his unquenchable energy for righteousness could have been supplied than during the period six years after he had retired from the Presidency, from May, 1915, to April 1917. It is no exaggeration to say that during that bitter time he was the great awakener of his country's soul the real leader of our spiritual forces.

The moral indignation of his writings recalled a Carlyle or a Swift. His capacity for action went into his pen; its results were cumulative and sure. While men of lesser stature were counseling timidity and profits from munitions he foresaw the part which America must perforce assume. And he did not die until the triumph was won. Figuratively but none the less actually he carried the flag and led the charge.

Like all great fighters, he loved a fight only for its results in righteousness. In these days of unsettled policies, of fierce industrial conflict, it is salutary to remember that Theodore Roosevelt was a statesman, not a politician. He never vulgarly asked, "What is there in it for me?" but "How can I serve my country and my time?" With mean struggles for financial advantage he was never in sympathy. He regarded "malefactors of great wealth" and of labor unions with equal abhorrence.

He called American citizens to service for their country—which in the end means true advantage for themselves. He looked beyond the hilltops, not into the slime. The man with a muckrack the man who lights the destructive torch or loosens railway ties, he considered a low type of human animal. The forces of unrighteousness had good reason to fear his tremendous energy and his searching intellect.

Such an example of leadership as his is not dimmed in death; it does not rust unburnished, it shines in use. For it is the sword of the Republic which he kept bright and handed on.

The astonishing thing about Roosevelt, however, was that he was not only a great man of action but a mirror of the best in American culture. An indefatigable reader, observer, and talker, he absorbed information and inspiration in the same manner, one thinks, that Shakespeare absorbed them.

Like Goethe, he looked once into a book and twice into human nature; like Arnold, he felt that it is conduct which makes up three-fourths of life; like Emerson, he believes in a kind of Lamkin's address was considered as one of the most significant of the meeting.

EVIDENCE ALL IN IN GOWDY CASE

ARGUMENTS OF THE ATTORNEYS LATE THIS AFTERNOON

DEFENDANT TAKES STAND

Case Expected to Reach Jury Tomorrow Afternoon—Three Arguments for Each Side

All of the evidence in the case of the state against William Gowdy on a charge of rape was concluded at 3 o'clock this afternoon after the defense introduced six character witnesses testifying to the morality of the defendant. A recess was taken at that time for the attorneys to prepare their instructions to be submitted to the court.

The arguments of the attorneys will start late this afternoon. Prosecuting Attorney Tom Bailey of Atchison County, Hal Hunt of Rock Port, and Prosecuting Attorney Charles McCaffrey will speak for the state, and L. C. Cook, Judge L. D. Ramsey and Ed Kelso will speak for the defense. It is expected the arguments of the attorneys will conclude Saturday afternoon as Judge Dawson has to go to Rock Port Sunday for a special term of court to be convened Monday.

The defendant, William Gowdy, was on the witness stand this morning and entered a denial of the alleged offense.

The trial of this case has attracted many people from Atchison County, there having been nearly 100 witnesses from that county. The case came from that county to this county on a change of venue. It has been a hotly contested case, many prominent lawyers from Northwest Missouri being associated with it.

The Tarkio team, accompanied by several rooters arrived today in cars, and they all seem determined to even up the account for the Maryville victory against them earlier in the season.

SON KILLS FATHER IN SELF DEFENSE

W. H. BARE WAS SHOT BY ERNEST O. BARE AT JUNTURA, ORE.

SEND BODY TO BARNARD

Son Was Exonerated by a Coroner's Jury at Juntura as Father Was Menacing Him With Pitchfork.

Word has been received at Barnard that W. H. Bare, a former resident of that community, was killed by his son, Ernest O. Bare, at Juntura, Ore., on October 20. The body is now on the way to Barnard for burial and it is expected to arrive there probably tomorrow.

Little particulars of the killing are known at Barnard. The son, Ernest O. Bare, who is about 20 or 35 years old, was exonerated by a coroner's jury at Juntura on the grounds that he shot in self defense. It was said his father was menacing him with a pitchfork and that the young man pulled a revolver and fired one shot, the bullet entering below the eye and ranging upward.

Bare left the Barnard community about thirty-five years ago for the west. He was about 60 years old. He leaves two brothers and sisters surviving being John and Andy Bare, and Mrs. John Hubbell and Mrs. Mary Richards, all of the Barnard community.

It is said the young man, Ernest O. Bare, visited in Maryville and Barnard last spring.

Speaking at New York He Places Blame for Failure to Return to Normalcy.

New York City, Oct. 27.—"Business conditions are still very unsettled," declared Elbert H. Gary, president of the American Iron and Steel Institute today in an address before the annual meeting of that body.

"The high cost of living, profiteering and labor troubles are preventing the return to normalcy," Gary declared in giving reasons for the failure of better business conditions.

CALIF. HAS NOTHING ON MARYVILLE TRUCK GARDNER

Walton Frank is Now Enjoying Lettuce, Radishes, Tomatoes and New Potatoes

California doesn't have anything on Nodaway County when it comes to having fresh garden stuff in the fall. Walton Frank of East Seventh street is now enjoying fresh butter beans, new potatoes, tomatoes, lettuce, radishes and other garden eatables more plentiful in the spring. He has been growing these in abundance as well as lots of fruit on his place. From his pear trees he has sold eighty bushels an given away thirty bushels to his neighbors.

So the residents on East Seventh street insist that Nodaway county is as good as California and even better because their neighbor is always sharing his good things with them.

A large crowd is expected to hear this sermon.

COOPER ANSWERS EICKHOLT TODAY

ARGUMENT IS WRITTEN BY BERT COOPER ON COUNTY UNIT

GIVES COUNTY FIGURES

He Tells Cost and Working of New Bill in County—Eickholt Writes Again

The following article has been prepared and signed by Bert Cooper, former county superintendent of Nodaway County and now a member of the faculty of the State Teachers College. It is in answer to article published last week in the Democrat-Forum and signed by B. Eickholt of Ravenwood, on the proposed County Unit Bill.

From an article signed by Mr. Eickholt, published in a recent issue of the Democrat Forum I quote the following:

"There are in Nodaway County 133 rural schools if I know right. Now, allowing that four rural districts would be put into one school under the new system that would mean 30 buildings to be erected at a cost of probably $35,000.00 a piece, something like $1,000,000 for Nodaway County."

One has only to look at the facts and figures for a moment, to see the fallacy of such reasoning. The statement does not seem to take any account of conditions as they now exist.

In the first place let us remember that a board of six members cannot build these school houses any more than the board of three members can now build a school house. We, the people, will vote these buildings when we see fit.

There are approximately an average of 200 pupils graduated from the eight grade in the rural schools each year. This would mean that at no time would the county district have to care for perhaps more than 500 pupils in high school. There are now seventeen accessible high schools in the county. While 13 of these are first class and would be exempt from the county unit their territory would also be exempt and would not have to be provided for. Further the county board may use these high schools by paying tuition for pupils sent to them. This is cheaper in many instances than building. By studying the map of the territory remaining after the thirteen above districts are eliminated one can see that eight new buildings would place practically every boy and girl in the County within 3 1-2 miles of a big school. There probably would be not more than ten pupils at any time living further than 3 1-2 miles from a high school. These eight new buildings plus the four high schools now existing that would come under the county unit, would make twelve high schools in county districts to care for 500 students, an average of 41 to the school. The cost to erect these eight buildings would not exceed $10,000 each or a total amount of $80,000. The Lafayette School east of Guilford, which will care for at least 50 pupils, was built in 1920 and cost less than $5,000.00. If the people not the board, should see fit to erect all these buildings at one time, which is not at all likely, they would vote bonds to that amount and retire them in not less than 10 years. This would take a levy of 2 1-2 cents each year on the $100.00 assessed valuation of thecounty district. The valuation of the county district. The valuation of according to the County Clerks re-

FASCTISTI ARE VICTORS AT ROME

ITALIAN ORGANIZATION COMES IN POWER.

CIVIL WAR PREVENTED

Rome in Stage of Great Excitement With Many Guards on Duty.

Rome, Oct. 27—Former Premier Giolitti was today invited by Signor Mussolina, chief of the Fascisti, to come to Rome to participate in the formation of a new government ministry. This is regarded as a complete victory for the Fascisti who threatened civil war unless they were allowed controlling voice in the formation of the new ministry.

Rome, Oct. 27—Rome is today in tense excitement following the resignation of Premier Facta and his ministry, last night following an ultimatum issued by the Fascisti.

It is generally expected that former premier, Goilitti and Orlando will be invited to form a new ministry. Gollitti yesterday conferred with Benito Mussolini, chief of the Fascisti organization and with Orlando.

The roadways leading to Rome and the public buildings are heavily guarded today and a great fear of civil war outbreak was evidenced everywhere in the city.

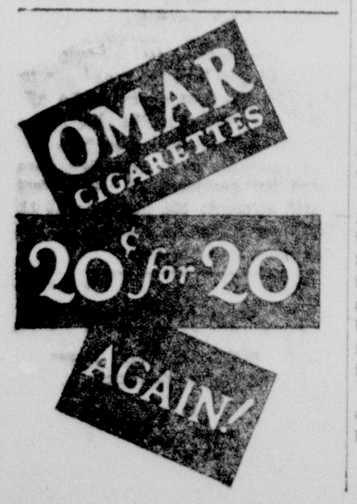
ABOUT THAT FOREIGN DEBT

Some of the men who advocate the cancellation of the foreign debt growin out of the world war do not stop to think upon what this debt is founded. They are either giving way to sentiment that has no place in this sort of transaction or they have some personal ax to grind.

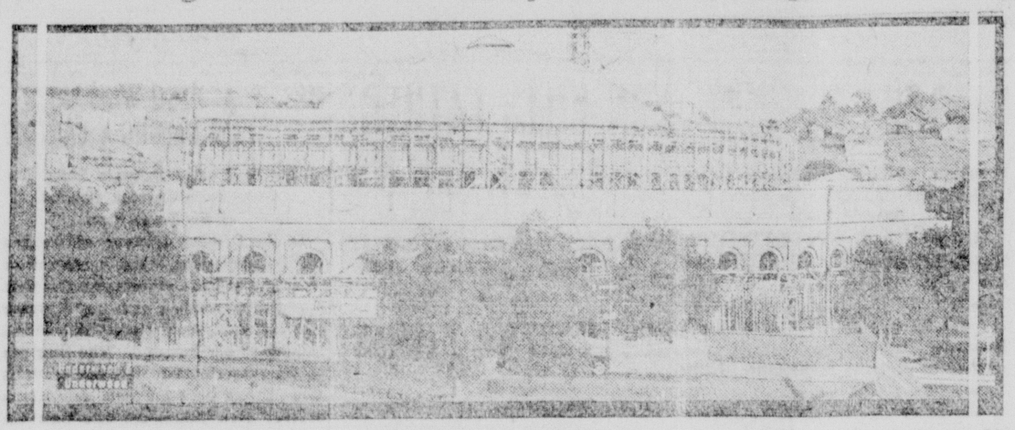
These debts were made by selling bonds of the United States to the people. The Government of this country is paying the interest on these bonds to the people who hold them and they represent a valid debt that will be redeemed in full by this Government. The money derived from the sale of these bonds was used to carry on the war on our own behalf and in advances to foreign governments to aid them in continuing the war to a successful conclusion.

This Government expects to pay a large part of these bonds from the money to be received from the payment of these foreign debts. If they were cancelled, it amounts in substance to asking the people of the United States to pay to this Government in taxes the money necessary to pay off the bonds they hold. This they will have no desire to do.

And especially will they not want to do this so long as these same foreign countries maintain great standing armies. The people of the United States are not willing to pay for a great standing army of their own and they will certainly not want to pay for those abroad. Besides most of these countries took part in a disarmament conference in Washington and are pledged to reduce both armies and armament.



Big Tabernacle Built by Woman Evangelist



This huge tabernacle, of concrete construction, is being completed in Los Angeles by Aimee Semple McPherson, thirty-three-year-old girl evangelist, who will open it on Jan. 1, 1923. Miss McPherson by sheer force of will has been able to raise funds necessary for the building, which is of the best possible construction throughout and will serve to house evangelistic activities for decades to come.

Great geniuses in business as a rule are the men who applied themselves to their work with a genuine desire to do some worthwhile thing better than the average man. Geniuses in poetry may be born but the business genius is the man who digs in and is not satisfied with just getting by.

This is a good time to store and put up more Missouri apples. Missouri has produced her first really big apple crop in years. The apple crop is generally good throughout the United States but because of various difficulties Missouri apple growers have been unable to market their crop at more than a very small profit. There is no more healthful, attractive or delicious food than the Missouri apple. The period from October 30 to November 7 is to be known as apple week and everybody will be urged to consume more apples. It is not necessary to wait until apple week to lay in a supply of apples. Get them while you can at a reasonable price, eat them, can them or preserve them. They are good in most any form and there is no better pie to be made than good old Missouri apple pie.

FIRE CHIEF ENDS FIRE BEFORE FORCE ARRIVES

Cincinnati, O., Oct. 26.—Len Westcott quite appropriately has been awarded the tin derby as Cincinnati's most resourceful fire marshal. While passing a laundry building the other day he discovered a blaze on the roof, turned in a call for a fire company and then dashed up the stairs to the roof and beat out the flames with a broom.

"Fire's out!" he shouted down to the firemen who had just arrived below. "Loss: One broom and a dozen shingles."

THIRD-GRADE PUPILS SMOKE AND CHEW SAYS SCHOOLHEAD

Hillsdale, Mich., Oct. 26.—Vigorous measures to wipe out cigarette smoking among third grade schoolboys here have been taken by S. J. Gier, superintendent of schools, following an investigation which showed, he asserted, that the use of tobacco among school children virtually amounts to an epidemic.

School children of nine and ten years are almost addicted to chewing tobacco and smoking it in pipes, Superintendent Gier said. Many pupils are said to have admitted that grocers and tobacco dealers sell tobacco to minors without question. Prosecutions will follow, the superintendent declares.

Fifty pupils in third to eighth grade questioning them, and about sixty in high school.

8TH BORN CHILD HEALTHIEST DECLARES A LONDON DOCTOR

London, Oct. 26.—"The first child has the worst record for disease and the eight child and upward the best." This is the result of an exhaustive inquiry made by Dr. R. H. Vercoe among the school children of Essex.

"Eighth children," he says, "are inferior to none and superior to the eldest children in small families."

In intelligence, weight, height, and other qualities the differences are slight, but the following are noted.

Intelligence rises slightly from first child to third, then drops to the sixth, and rises again to the eight child.

The tallest and heaviest children are the latest born, while the shortest and lightest are the second and sixth.

The eldest child, as a rule, has the lightest colored eye, while the eight has the darkest. In defects of vision the first and second children are the worst, while the third child comes out best. In general defects the first child is slightly the worst and the eight by far the best.

Mrs. Catherine Miller returned last night from a ten days' visit with her sons, Robert Miller and family in Wynona, Okla., and H. C. Miller in Vinita, Okla.

Ye Hobos! Hit A Rattler East Convention Opens Next Week

New York, Oct. 26—"Ministers that can't minister, poets that can't poetize, and reformers that can't reform" are in for a tough time when the annual convention of the Hobo's Union meets at Columbus, O., on October 28.

That convention is going to be "of the hobo, by the hobo and for the hobo," take it from Gus Schaefer, lecturer in the New York Hobos' College and leader in the local chapter of the International Brotherhood Welfare Association, which is the "highbrow monicker" of the hobos' organization. Gus is a candidate for editor of the Hobo News, the official publication of the union.

Against "Mission Stiffs"

"A lotta these 'mission stiffs' think they're gonna run that convention," Gus declared. "Well, they ain't. Us regular bos have got a regular programme to put through and we're gonna jam it across, see."

The "mission stiffs," Gus explained are the "intellectual parasites" that seek to direct the activities of the hobos' union to the furtherance of some fad, religious, political, or what not. The "regular bos" are the true knights of the road, the migratory workers who form the great army of "boxcar tourists" of America.

"We're gonna demand the abolition of the vagrancy laws," Gus went on. "We're gonna demand free transportation to and from the jobs. The hobos built the railroads, so why should they pay to ride on 'em? We're gonna make a big kick against these private labor agencies that make us pay 'em cash before they'll ship us out on a job, and we're gonna advocate out-of-work-insurance legislation, so that the fellows can eat without panhandlin' when they can't get a job."

Gus Knows Ropes

Gus qualified as an expert in hobo affairs by relating that he just arrived in New York from San Francisco, having made the trip in nine days without paying a dime for transportation.

In Schaefer's expert opinion, business conditions throughout the country are improving.

Unemployment conditions, he said, are much better than they were a year ago, and distress among the migratory workers will be less this Winter than for several years.

Of the membership of hobos' union, Schaefer declared, 20 per cent or more are former service men. Mighty few of the members are married.

Delegates from twenty-nine cities will attend the Columbus convention. Already the jungle highways are thronged with "harvest stiffs," "short stake 'bos," "timber wolves," and others, who will attend. A thousand campfires along the jungle trails are the beacon lights of the great migration.

Women Delegates

Among the delegates will be several women, for there are about 400 "hoboettes," who are members of the union. Miss Newton, from Oklahoma City, and Miss Kellogg, from Denver, are delegates who will attend.

The attitude of the union toward "bums" was expressed by Ike Schapp, who is known as the official humorist of the union and who admitted just returning from a "six weeks' vacation in Canada."

"Bums," declared Ike, "ain't no good for anything!"

"BOUGHT AND PAID FOR" TO BE SHOWN AT THE EMPIRE

Two Paramount stars, Agnes Ayres and Jack Holt, who were featured respectively in "The Sheik," "The Call of the North," and "The Lane That Had No Turning," play the two principal roles—those of Robert Stafford and Virginia Blaine—in "Bought and Paid For," the William de Mille production which will be featured at the Empire Theatre tonight and tomorrow.

The role of Virginia Blaine was created on the stage in George Broadhurst's notable play, from which the picture was adapted, by Julia Dean.

The cast is notable for the ability of the players embraced therein. Walter Hiers, a rotund polite comedian inimitably plays "Jimmy", which was enacted by Frank Cravens in the original stage production. Others are Leah Wyant, George Kuwa and Bernice Frank.

Of unusual interest is the fact that Mr. Broadhurst, author of the play, and William de Mille, who produced it for the screen, worked side by side in the old days and in one year they had two of the biggest successes in New York stage history running side by side—Broadhurst's "Bought and Paid For" and de Mille's "The Woman."

Mrs. Ade Diem returned Thursday morning from a three months' visit with relatives and friends at points in Michigan, Indiana and Illinois.

AND THEY SHALL BUILD THE OLD WASTES—

The Prophet Draws A Picture Of The Glory Of A Righteous People.

(By C. L. Ficklin, editor of the DeKalb County Herald, Maysville, Mo.)

That is a pretty fine picture that the prophet Isaiah draws in his 61st chapter. We have the first nine verses of that chapter for the Sunday School lesson for next Sunday. It is a great list of good things the Isaiah presents to us:

Preaching good tidings—which means Gospel.

Building the old wastes.

Comforting them that cry.

Letting people out of jail, and untying those that are tied.

Putting the spirit of praise in place of the spirit of sorrow and heaviness.

Having strange men come to your place in the spirit of friendship and feed your cattle for you, and the sheep and throw corn to the chickens and take care of the little and big pigs.

Having foreigners come in to get your breaking plow and plow up your ground to put in the coming crop of wheat, and having these same friends trim up the grapevines and trim up the apple trees and smooth up the peach trees and pear trees— and then cut the rag weeds.

Building up ruined cities.

The love of God.

The love of justice.

Hatred of injustice.

Trees of righteousness.

Hope, joy, peace, prosperity, happiness.

That is certainly a great picture of good things that the prophet draws. It is a picture of almost complete bliss.

And yet not one word is said about the contributing work of corn whiskey or light wines and beer that we hear so much about now and that some fellows say we need so badly in order that we might be happy.

This next Sunday's lesson is called prohibition lesson. Nothing is said in the lesson about any kind of liquor and nothing is said about prohibition. But a prohibition lesson may legitimately be drawn from this Scripture.

Isaiah's picture of joy and healing and hope is a picture that is intertwined and interlaced with godliness and righteousness. This joy and this comfort and this well-being that Isaiah talks about are built on Christ as the foundation, Christ as the inspiration, Christ as the great moving cause—and righteousness.

That kind of a picture, that kind of a condition logically comes after righteousness.

And that kind of a picture, that kind of a condition has followed after prohibition.

Yonder is a happy little girl. She has light hair and blue eyes. Her face is lighted up. Her health is good. She gets up in the morning to a nice breakfast and she starts in on a big bowl of oatmeal with thick Jersey cream and cane sugar to cover it. She is the child of an ex-drunkard. Her dad sits across the breakfast table from her, and her mamma sits catacornered across from them both and smiles and drinks hot coffee and eats beefsteak. They all have plenty to eat. They have plenty to wear, and the little girl and the mamma both follow the daddy to the door and he kisses them both goodbye.

But that is not the prettiest thing about it all. Lots of dads have gone away from home with these goodbye greetings and with the hanging of soft arms around their necks—

But the home coming was dreaded.

Now the dad comes back home sober, buoyant, the sag gone out of his face, straight stepped, and a new shine in his eyes. And the little girl runs out and kisses him again and so does the mamma—and the little girl asks him what he thinks about her having her hair bobbed—says she has been thinking about it for some time. And the daddy who once was sullen, sometimes swore at his folks, did not provide for them and left his money on the saloon man's palm—that daddy now has better ideas than the little girl has about this hair bobbing business, but he does not want to be ungentle and he takes her tow cheeks in his hand and says.

"Well, we'll see about it dear."

That kind of a picture is to be found in thousands of places in America since America went sober. Homes now bubble that once howled. And the light that is in the eyes of wives and little girls and little boys is a light that is rarely seen on land or sea except in the eyes of people who have come up out of the great tribulation that went along with drunkenness of drunken men.

People have been let out of jail, captives have been unbound, waste places have been built up again, the brokenhearted have been healed, and those that mourn are comforted.

Let us all swat the man who wants this country to go back to whiskey, or corn juice, or champagne, or light wines or beer. He is an enemy of society and a foe to all righteousness.

That's all I want to say about prohibition.

It is a big point. But I think it is a secondary point in this lesson.

Let us go back to the first verse. Or rather let us go to the fourth chapter of Dr. Luke. You will find there that Christ went to His old home town of Nazareth and read in the synagogue from Isaiah. And he opened up right where we have opened up in Isaiah for this next Sunday's lesson And He read.

How did it start out? It started this way:

"The spirit of the Lord is upon me because He hath anointed me to preach the gospel!—"

That was the way it started out—with the Gospel. And then Christ read on in that list of good things and told them that that Scripture was that day fulfilled in Him. He and His Gospel are the first things mentioned in the list. They ought to be first. They belong there.

Please do not forget that.

There's just one way to get joy and peace and the rest of that picture. It's not by going to Florida in the winter time and to the Wisconsin lakes in the summer time. It's not by boat riding, yecht racing, sleeping late wearing fine clothes, going to parties—chasing joy and contentment by glossing up, painting up, coddling up the body. And you can't rebuild the old wastes in your life with books or culture or social work or giving $100 to the hospital.

Jesus of Nazareth and His Gospel are the sweetness and the dynamite that revolutionize, rejuvenate, remake rebuild. We are in this day pinning too much faith to secondary human agencies to bring the goory that is in Isaiah's picture.

Let's get back to the sweetness and the dynamite and the bubbling glory that can come only from Jesus and His Gospel.

cords. But suppose the people should vote to pay all the $80,000 in one year with a direct building tax. It would take a levy of 22 1-2 cents on the $100 assessed valuation, and then we would be through with it. As a matter of fact, if the county unit carries, one or two buildings will be erected each year and the tax be so light we will never notice it. In many instances the rural building now existing will be used temporarily for high school.

I have studied carefully the county unit law from every angle and I firmly believe it is the farmer's opportunity to secure his just rights for the education of his children. I fully appreciate his over burdened condition but I feel that he must cooperate with his neighbor for the education of his children as well as in the marketing of his products. The increased cost is going to be light in operating the county unit law. Its advantages are going to be so much greater and cheaper than sending children away and paying for tuition, that I am confident that every citizen who has the best interests of the county boy and girl at heart should vote "Yes" on Proposition 12.

B. Eickholt Writes Again

In your issue of Tuesday, Oct. 24, I see that the advocates for this bill have started to thoroughly explain this proposed law. I am very glad they are doing this for if the voters know what this law will do and how it will do it, there will be no danger of it becoming a law.

In regard to the first of the articles in favor of this law, that of one County School board, all I need say is this: How is one board going to look after the education of all those children that crowded Maryville on School Day in fifteen days work in one year. This seems like a joke to me.

This Makes the Third Time That He Has Topped the Sale of Harvey's.

T. F. Apple gate, near Hopkins paid the top price for a boar at the Harvey and Harvey Sale held at Gray Pavillion yesterday. The price paid was $112.50 and is the third time that Applegate has topped the Harvey Sale.

On his farm he has 140 head of pure Chester White hogs and is planning a sale later in the year of fifty pure bred sows.

The 109 head sold averaged $40 a head.

THE COUNTY UNIT BILL

"In the thirteen first class high school districts in Nodaway County the cost per child based on average daily attendance is $69.28 a year. In the rural schools the cost per child based on the average daily attendance is $81.81 a year; moreover, in many districts of Nodaway County the cost per child in the rural school based on average daily attendance is $104. The tragedy of the expenditure is seen in the fact that the $69.28 the smaller amount spent per child in the town schools of Nodaway County includes a high school education, an education much more expensive than that of the first eight grades. The $81.81 per child spent in the rural schools pays only for the first eight grades with little or no equipment.

A superficial observer may say that the expenditure of $81.81 per child is a more liberal expenditure on the part of the farmer than that of the man in town. Is it? Is it good business sense to spend $81.81 per year for a child without high school advantages when by a better and a business organization both elementary and high school instruction can be secured for less than it is costing at the present time for the first eight grades? Economy, thrift, and good business sense consist in wise and efficient expenditure of money.

Under the present conditions, if a parent desires a high school education for his children, he sends them to a town high school where he pays a large tuition, thus increasing the $81.81 not only for himself but for the districts.

The county unit provides for this better organization, provides for economy in that both an elementary and high school education can be secured by every boy and girl of Nodaway County."

Poland China Committee to Promote Story of Nodaway County Boy and His Hogs

Robert Gallagher, the six year old grandson of Rol Thomas, is again in the limelight as a successful farmer. Yesterday he received a letter from Sam W. Crabtree, of the publicity department of the Poland China Breed Promotion Committee asking him if he would send them a picture of himself and hogs similar to the one used in the October issue of "Farm Mechanics" in its story.

Crabtree wrote that he wanted the picture to write a story that would be sent to the newspapers of the state. The picture in the "Farm Mechanics," showed Robert using a hose and giving some of his hogs a shower bath in a cement hog lot.

AN APPLE FOR EVERY PURPOSE

Varieties Differ Greatly in Their Cooking Qualities

For the best apple pie that mother used to make and for the most toothsome creation of the modern chef there is a reason—employment of the right variety for each particular purpose. Careful analysis has shown that apple varieties differ in their usefulness for various purposes. The modern chef would not think of using Stayman, King David or Wolf River for a pie fore he has learned that they are not fit for such a purpose. He also knows why Fameuse, Maiden Blush, Minkler and Grimes make the best apple dumplings.

In 1913 and 1914 the Oregon Experiment Station obtained as many apple varieties as possible and decided to learn something of their properties for different uses. The results were surprising. Highly experienced "apple tasters" were used as judges for all products and the results will interest every family.

From 55 varieties of apples tested for pie qualities only such varieties as Northern Spy, Rambo and Maiden Blush were supreme, while Gano Grimes, Jonathan, Winesap, Giant Jeniton, etc., ranked second.

For dumplings, Maiden Blush, Minkler, Grimes and Spy were superior to Ben Davis, Rome, Jonathan, etc.

For jelly the Maiden Blush was far ahead of Gano, Grimes, York, etc.

For marmalade, Rome, Jonathan and Maiden Blush were better than Grimes, Gano, York, Winesap, etc.

Usually it is only the fruit grower's family that has a number of varieties from which to select for the purpose in mind but fortuately there are a few general utility apples that score high for souse, pie, jelly, marmalade and dumpling use, which are Maiden Blush, Jonathan, Grimes, Rambo and Northern Spy varieties found in most Missouri home orchards.

Apple varieties rated as excellent for sauce usually make good pie. Also apples which have brightly colored skins are the ones which make a bright-colored jelly.

Such varietal information when used with Missouri Extension Circular 93, "Selected Apple Recipes," prepared by Essie M. Heyle of the Agricultural Extension Service, Columbia, Mo., will help to make National Apple Day, Tuesday, October 31, more enjoyable.

CIVIL WAR VETERAN NOT CITIZEN, FINDS.

Voted 30 Years, Then Discovers He's Subject Of England, Not Of U. S.

Nowata, Okla., Oct. 26.—James Meadowcroft, seventy-seven years old, labored under the delusion that he was a citizen of the United States for sixty-nine years. Imagine his consternation when, after serving under the Stars and Stripes for four years during the Civil War and voting for nearly thirty years, Meadowcroft discovered he was a subject of England, having been born in that country. That was eight years ago.

Naturalization papers were issued recently to the aged man.

Immediately following his discovery he stopped voting and exercising other rights of American citizenship and instituted plans to become a citizen.

Authorities declared he is the oldest person to be given naturalization papers in this country.

Delay in issuance of Meadowcroft's papers was occasioned by World War activities.

S. DAK. RURAL CREDITS WORK

STATE SELLS 41 MILLIONS IN RURAL BONDS

FARM LOANS 36 MILLION

Member of State Board Says It Is a Big Saving For Taxpayers

Sioux Falls, S. D.—J. E. Ziebach, a member of the State Rural Credits Board, announces that the South Dakota plan of rural credits is proving a great success, that state bonds issued by his department are still finding a ready market and that the State has ample funds to loan farmers who have security which can be approved.

Mr. Ziebach expects that the first of the year 1923 will witness a readjustment of much of the farm loan business of South Dakota, and says that the State will stand behind the farmers to the greatest possible extent under the provisions of the law, in his effort to readjust business affairs to materially changed conditions.

So far, the State has sold rural credit bonds to the amount of $41,500,000. Of this sum nearly $36,000,000 had been loaned to farmers by July 1 of this year. South Dakota's rural credits plan is unique in that South Dakota is the only State in the Union which has used the State's credit to obtain a low rate of interest for individual borrowers within the State.

Saving For Taxpayers

Rather than an expense to the taxpayers, it constitutes a big saving for them, and in a sense bonds issued for this purpose are held not to be a liability of the State.

Before the rural credits law went into effect several years ago, rates of interest in South Dakota for many years had been unequal in that the region west of the Missouri River, constituting western South Dakota—the newer portion of the State—residents had to pay a higher rate of interest to private farm loan companies than the farmers of the older portion of South Dakota, east of the Missouri. As high as 10 per cent was charged in some portions of western South Dakota up to the time the rural credits law was enacted and went into effect. Since, it has been possible for borrowers to obtain loans under its provisions in every section of South Dakota at the same rate of interest. The result has been to force interest rates downward.

While it is difficult to compute the saving to individual residents of South Dakota in interest payments since 1917—when the rural credits law became effective—it has been a very large sum, and as the law has saved this interest to individual borrowers, it has saved it to the State.

Specially Helpful Recently

The rural credits law has proved of especially benefit to the farmers of South Dakota during the past two years, when it was almost impossible for farmers to get loans from other sources. A large number of cases are on record where financial assistance from the rural credits board was procured when the borrower could not get a dollar from any other source.

During this period, interest rates advanced materially and in connection with this advance by private farm loan companies, it was necessary for the rural credits board to increase the rate of interest on rural credits loans, because the rate at which the money was borrowed by the State was higher but it is stated that throughout that time, the State was able to borrow where it would have been impossible for the individual farmer to have done so.

With the improvement in the financial situation, the rate of interest charged borrowers from the state rural credits fund will again become normal.

SWISS INSURANCE COMPANY BANS LOW-NECKED DRESS

London, Oct. 26—Henceforth in Switzerland the girl who wears a low-necked dress and wishes to insure herself will have to pay a much higher premium than the girl who wears a dress buttoned up to her throat.

Several Swiss insurance companies who accept illness risks have notified their woman clients that premiums will be increased 15 per cent from November 1 to certain of their sex.

This action, they declare, has become necessary owing to losses resulting from the wearing of lownecked dresses, short skirts and sleeves and high heels, which have greatly increased the amount of illnesses.

mystical common sense which can hitch a wagon not merely to a horse, but to a star. There was no useful and noble side of American life that he did not touch.

If he lacked the austere and Scriptural simplicity of Lincoln, he had the same magical understanding of the common people, the same enduring sympathy with them. He walked with kings or with plowmen with the same easy stride and the same born comradeship. No name since Lincoln's evokes such popular enthusiasm; and none is so worthy of it.

We have no Westminster Abbey in which are buried the best of those that served their country and mankind; but in our American temple of silent admirations we have merely to mention the name of Theodore Roosevelt to awaken echoes of his greatness.

"The end of a man," said a remarkable writer, "is an action and not a thought, however noble." In these United States we have not yet retired to the library to compose masterpieces. Our greatest men are still in the open, under the sun or the stars. They build industrial empires, structures of steel or of statesmanship. They make ready a vast territory for later leisure and for perfection of culture. They serve a country still young and with the headlong impetuosity of youth. They have found that "something lost behind the ranges" which has always wanted for explorers, for pioneers.

The best reminder of Roosevelt's spirit which his death evoked was a drawing, by a Western artist, of a fiery rider up the trail toward the mountain ranges which hold our hopes and our dreams.

PAULY WAS CHARGED WITH SHOOTING GIRL

Former Patrolman at St. Joseph is Found Guilty by Coroner's Jury

St. Joseph, Mo., Oct. 27.—Former Patrolman Pauly was charged with firing the fatal shot that killed Nellie Hale last Thursday night by the coroner's jury in its verdict, reached after about an hour's deliberation early last night, after the testimony of about twenty witnesses had been heard during the inquest conducted by Dr. A. R. Timerman at the county courthouse.

The rooms of Judge Allen's division of the circuit court were packed with spectators throughout the day and every word stated by the witnesses was eagerly grasped by the audience.

The verdict follows:

"We, the members of the coroner's jury, find that the said Nellie Hale came to her death from a pistol shot fired by Officer Pauly. We also find that Officer O. J. Gartland, in command of the raiding squad, exceeded his authority by pursuing the said John Bond outside of the city limits, hereby becoming an necessory to the death of the said Nellie Hale."

The verdict was signed by W. C. Pearson, foreman of the jury; H. F. Rieper, Walter Nash, Fred Mueller, Charles Bristol and George Thompson.

BIG G. O. P. GUNS WON'T COME TO MISSOURI TO ATTACK SENATOR REED.

By L. C. Speers
Staff Correspondent of the Globe-Democrat and New York Times.

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 27.—In conversation today with one of the Republican managers in Kansas City, the Globe-Democrat and New York Times correspondent was informed that an effort had been made to get Assistant Secretary of the Navy Theodore Roosevelt to come to Missouri and make a few speeches for the Republican ticket. Roosevelt declined, it was said, because of his friendship for Senator Reed. For that reason he did not feel that he could consistently attack Senator Reed.

No one thing in the campaign apparently worried the Republicans more than their failure to induce big outside Republicans to come into the state and help defeat Reed. The Democrats make much of this and cite the fact that Borah has openly expressed the hope that Reed will be re-elected. Hiram Johnson is understood to entertain the same hope.

Ex-Senator, now Judge, Kenyon of Iowa some time ago said that he hoped Reed would win.

Who will vote for Brewster? Some of them are:

1. All dry republicans.
2. Thousands of dry democrats.
3. Thousands more of women, of both parties. (They cannot soon forget that Reed has always fought women's rights.)
4. Possibly a few republicans who are wet but will stand by the party. (Not many of these however.)
5. In short, most of the pure, clean, temperance and protestant people of the state will support Brewster.

I think these statements cannot and will not be questioned by any thinking people. If they have even a semblance of truth, my brother, I want to ask which crowd do you want to be linked up with? For my part I will take the good and pure. Oh, yes, the politicians are coming in with their attacks on Brewster and his wet affiliations etc., etc. There never was a campaign of this kind waged but the political liar came in for his share. We are not to be disturbed by the political lies that are being told. It is the tactics of the wets and always has been. Those of us who have been in the fight before will not be led astray by these villifications. Brewster is an active worker in the Linwood Boulevard Presbyterian church of Kansas City and we have every reason to believe that he will carry his religious convictions with him to Washington. Reed wants to be elected on his record. I challenge him to tell the voters of Missouri about his wet record as Senator, and I further challenge him to remind the democrats of Missouri of his political record during the Wilson adminstration. Now, Jim, better save your five hundred and just tell all the truth about your record—that famous record that voted against practically every prohibition measure and bolted your party and villified the President and stamped you indelibly upon the hearts of the American people as one unfit and unworthy the office of U. S. Senator.

Who gets the most for His Money?

THE fellow who buys haphazard—or the chap who puts his everyday purchasing on a business basis?

The latter, of course. He is the one who reads the advertisements and discovers just where he can buy what he wants. He is the one who realizes the great value of advertising when it comes to the important business of spending his hard-earned money.

The well-informed shopper always has the advantage when it comes to stretching the dollars. And you can't possibly be up-to-date on the shopping news unless you make a practice of reading the advertisements.

The advertisements show you how to save money—and steps—and time. Watch them carefully.

Anything that increases your purchasing power is working hard for you.

Make the advertisements serve you well.
Read them regularly.

THE VALUE OF SAVING

"Save surely, steadily and wisely, so as to be able to spend judiciously in a time of need which will probably be greater than that of the present."
